Gap Analysis

The following table graphically displays the "Gap," or difference between your average rating on each competency (labeled "Self") and the average score of all other respondents (labeled "Others") who provided you with feedback. This can help you identify blind spots, or areas where you were rated more favorably by other respondents than by yourself. The Gaps for these competencies are colored in shades of green. Conversely, the graph can also help you identify your opportunities for improvement, or areas where you rated yourself higher than others did. The Gaps for these dimensions are colored in shades of red. The darker the shade of green or red, the larger the Gap. Finally, if a dimension's Gap is not shaded with a specific color, it indicates an area of agreement between yourself and others.

Comments:

- The staff works very well together and is a fine tooled machine. Everyone is very good at the role and engaged. The annual scores for the department were high and I believe very accurate in representing that we are a strong team. All of the staff know what is expected of them and they know I respect their work expertise. Individually, team members work with other parts of the organization and they are all well respected and their advice is sought out, particularly, who is asked to work on projects in a number of areas, especially grant writing.
- Over the years, the department has done very good work and contributed a great deal to both capital and non-capital projects.
- His confidence allows him to take on any task and also allows him to lead a team of leaders effectively.
- Over this past year _____ has demonstrated ambition and the desire for professional growth in his new role as CIO.
- He is in an often times impossible position and is doing well all things considered
- When there is not a good fit and outcomes are bad, needs to take action! When this does not happen other employees loose faith.
